

The FCC should never mandate technology. The consumer has a right to use whatever equipment they want to view tv. The fact that TV and movie companies think that everyone in the US is stealing from them is not an argument to implement a technology. Studies have shown their pricing and treatment of their customers has to do with their decreased incomes, not copying from home users.